

Avian Influenza-Temporary changes to free-range eggs

05/04/2022

Dear Customer,

From Monday 21st March 2022, following advice from the government's veterinary office, all free-range hens in the UK are temporarily housed inside to safeguard them against Avian Influenza commonly known as Bird Flu.

Our products that contain UK sourced free-range eggs within their ingredients are produced by hens that are temporarily housed inside, however there will be no changes to the packaging.

This is likely to last only a few weeks, but the final decision will be taken by the Government's Chief Veterinary Officer.

Yours sincerely,

A small, square, light blue box containing a handwritten signature in black ink, which appears to be 'Vh'.

Vishaka Naique

Technical Manager
Delice De France